Police lay child porn charges in Parsons case

Rehtaeh Parsons.

Father of bullied teen calls it a 'bittersweet' development

A father's heartbreak

"It was hard ... to watch my beautiful, loving, intelligent daughter just completely shatter and fall apart right in front of my eyes." Glen Canning, Rehtaeh Parsons' father

Two young men are facing child pornography charges in the case of Rehtaeh Parsons, nearly two years after her parents allege the teen was gang-raped at a party and a photo of the incident was shared via social media.

"A young girl ... experienced the harsh nature of a world of people wanting to do harm and using social media to do it," said Halifax Regional Police Chief Jean-Michel Blais at a news conference Thursday evening.

"We hope that today's arrests help the community to heal," added Halifax RCMP Chief Supt. Roland Wells.

The young men, both 18, were arrested around 8 a.m. Thursday. One faces two counts of distributing child pornography, and the other, charges of making and distributing child pornography.

Blais said the Crown advised investigators there was insufficient evidence to support sexual assault charges.

Glen Canning, Rehtaeh's father, said it was a "bittersweet" moment when he learned of the arrests. "On one hand I would want to be very happy and very grateful," he said. "On the other hand ... Rehtaeh's dead now, and it doesn't really make much of a difference to her."

Rehtaeh was 17 when she took her own life in April after nearly two years of bullying following an alleged rape at a party when she was 15.

Police re-opened the investigation amid public outrage a week after Rehtaeh's death, citing "new and credible" information.

Nova Scotia Justice Minister Ross Landry said he's pleased the public came forward with information. "I look forward to how this all unfolds," Landry said. "I respect ... that due process and justice will be followed."

Open city data

A new contest in HRM? Appsolutely

Mayor Mike Savage METRO FILE

There's no app for coming up with ideas, so HRM is asking residents to give it their best shot.

The municipality has launched the first phase of the inaugural open-data app contest, Apps4Halifax.

"What this is basically doing is going out to people who have an interest in information and have suggestions as to how we could make it more useable," said Mayor Mike Savage on Thursday. "We're saying to them, 'Tell us what we can do with this.'"

The five-month-long contest will move through several phases, starting with ideas submission. Residents are asked to submit ideas based on the municipal data released as part of HRM's Open Data pilot project.

"I think of apps around transit, one that allows us to know where the bus is," said Savage. "Perhaps an app that, as you're driving into town, you could find out what parking spaces are available."

In the next phase of the contest, local developers will be asked to create an app, using either citizen ideas or their own, using at least one data set from Open Data.

Next century may see more wildfires: Study

HRM ablaze. Nearby forests can be a major risk for rural property owners, scientists say

CLARK JANG
halifax@metronews.ca

A new study shows that the effects of climate change and expanded urban development could increase wildfire risk in the Halifax Regional Municipality over the next century.

The research, conducted by Dalhousie University scientists, was presented before the city's environment and sustainability standing committee on Thursday.

Ellen Whitman, who co-authored the report, says the research draws attention to the increasing risk of wildfires where urban development is mixed amongst forested regions, known as the Wildland Urban Interface (WUI).

"If you look at your house and it transitions into a forest there, those are the communities that are at risk," she said.

WUIs are at greater fire risk due to the presence of fuels such as decorative landscaping and a proximity to naturally occurring fire regimes.

The study shows fire weather — conditions that influence fire behaviour, ignition and suppression — will increase over the next 100 years.

Last year

- 22 — number of wildfires in Halifax county
- 352 — number of wildfires in Nova Scotia
- 817 — number of hectares burned by wildfires in Nova Scotia

The frequency and severity of storms, a shift in tree-species composition, and the severity and duration of insect outbreaks can all fuel an increased fire risk.

The research also states that there's a delicate balancing act of priorities between reaping the benefits of urban forests and preventing wildfire hazards by removing vegetation.

"If you're in urban fringe, wildfire risk may outweigh the significance of the benefits from those trees," said Whitman.

Even though Nova Scotia's tendency for wildfires is relatively small compared to the rest of Canada, Whitman says the municipality needs to actively manage WUI areas.

"There's an opportunity to make homeowners aware of how to mitigate risk and manage fuels on their property," said Whitman. "There could be changes to zoning and building codes, but generally just to be aware of that increasing risk over time."

City urged to embrace the joy of giving for Parade of Lights

Downtown. Business group calls for better event funding

The Downtown Halifax Business Commission is hoping HRM comes through with a special Christmas present this year: Enough money to cover services for the Holiday Parade of Lights.

The parade brings thousands of people into downtown Halifax each year, but the commission, as the organizing body, must pick up the tab for city services like street closures and policing.

"It seems a little bit ridiculous that it's so expensive," said Paul MacKinnon, executive director of the commission, on Thursday.

Last year the commission received a $17,000 grant

Response

The staff report is expected to come back this fall.

from HRM, which covered all but $5,000 of the municipal costs.

"Next year, that (grant) could be cut down to 10 or five (thousand) or waived," MacKinnon said. "We never know year to year."

As most businesses don't get a big revenue boost during the parade, and sponsorship is hard to find, MacKinnon said it's important for HRM to support the popular event.

"This is a real impediment, and do you want to do something about it?" he asked, noting smaller events like a Natal Day festival on Argyle Street have folded because of the complications and fees.

He also said Halifax is one of only a few Canadian cities that doesn't waive municipal costs for parades.

Coun. Wayne Mason passed a motion through HRM's transportation standing committee Wednesday, asking staff to look into a simpler street-closure policy and using volunteers to control traffic during events.

"You cut that (police) cost by $100,000 to $150,000.... It's a huge deal," Mason said.

Mason said that parades and festivals are great moments for residents to enjoy themselves and show some civic pride.

"Boy, do we need them. So there you go, we should support them," Mason said.

Dartmouth. Three men hit with drugs, weapons charges

Three men are facing charges after a police search turned up drugs, body armour and weapons in Dartmouth.

Officers carried out a search warrant at a home on Regal Road at 6:30 Wednesday morning and seized crack cocaine, body-armour vests, ammunition, drug paraphernalia, a knife, two loaded firearms and stolen property.

Three people were arrested at the scene and held in custody overnight.

Robert Bass-Manette, 25, Fahad Salman Shalaan, 22, and Dhari Salman Shalaan, 22, have each been dealt multiple weapons and drugs charges.

Fairview. Arrests made in violent break-in, robbery

Halifax Regional Police have two men in custody after a violent home invasion and robbery in Fairview.

Around 10:45 p.m. Wednesday, officers went to a home on Frederick Avenue after getting reports of a man who'd been beaten up.

Police say the man was in his home when three other men came in, attacked him and stole some of his belongings.

The victim was able to identify two suspects. Police tracked them to the Gaston Road area and arrested two men from Dartmouth.

They're facing several charges, including break-and-enter, assault and robbery.

Hundreds attend Rocky Jones' funeral

Truro. Supporters come from across Nova Scotia and Canada to honour human-rights fighter

The Colchester Community Funeral Home overflowed Thursday as family and friends celebrated the life of Dr. Burnley Allan "Rocky" Jones.

Hundreds of people filled the chapel, the basement and overflow rooms throughout the funeral home.

Jones, 71, passed away on July 29 after a series of heart attacks.

Stan Barrett travelled from outside Toronto to say goodbye to his "dear friend."

"Rocky was one of my heroes in Canada and an inspiration for some of my own work on racism," said Barrett, an anthropologist who met Jones in 1965 at Dalhousie University in Halifax.

Barrett met the well-known lawyer and civil-rights activist when he returned from West Africa through what was then known as Canadian University Service Overseas.

"That started a long, long friendship with Rocky," he explained. "When I worked at the University of Guelph, they had agreed to my idea to award him an honorary doctorate (of law).

"I consider Rocky to be the most effective and dedicated advocate of social reform in Canada. He dedicated his life to that," said Barrett.

A graduate of Dalhousie law school, Jones was a strong advocate for minority rights and social reform.

Roman Catholic diocese says church review underway in four counties

The pastoral planning director for the Roman Catholic Diocese of Antigonish says a review of parishes in four counties is underway.

Father Donald MacGillivray says all 48 parishes will be reviewed in the Strait of Canso region.

A similar review in Cape Breton County wrapped up earlier this year and resulted in eight churches closing in the Sydney, Glace Bay and Northside areas.

MacGillivray says the review will focus on how many churches are needed, but says closing churches will be a last resort.

He says review committees have been set up in Antigonish and Guysborough counties, while church officials are still in the process of establishing committees in Inverness and Richmond counties.

MacGillivray says he's not sure how long the review will take.

Muskrat Falls. Inuit groups ask for judicial review of project

Two Inuit groups in Labrador are challenging a key part of the Muskrat Falls hydro project now under construction on the Lower Churchill River.

The Nunatsiavut Government and the NunatuKavut Community Council have filed requests for judicial review in Halifax.

They're asking the Federal Court to revisit a decision by the Department of Fisheries and Oceans to grant permission to begin work on a dam without properly consulting them.

Nunatsiavut president Sarah Leo says the project will damage recognized Inuit lands and cause potential health issues.

She says such concerns were recognized by a federal-provincial environmental assessment panel but have not been accommodated.

NunatuKavut president Todd Russell, whose group has no federally recognized land claim, says the province has failed to adequately consult his members.

The authorization to start building the dam was granted to provincial Crown corporation Nalcor Energy, which declined comment as it reviews the court applications.

No one from the Department of Fisheries and Oceans or Natural Resources Canada could be immediately reached for comment. THE CANADIAN PRESS

U.S. authorities indict friends of Boston Marathon bombing suspect Conspiracy charges. If convicted, they face up to 20 years in prison.

Two friends of suspected Boston Marathon bomber Dzhokhar Tsarnaev were formally accused Thursday for allegedly trying to throw away fireworks and other items police say they found in Tsarnaev's dorm room before his capture. Authorities later found some of the items in a New Bedford landfill, the federal indictment says.

Dias Kadyrbayev and Azamat Tazhayakov, both 19 and nationals of Kazakhstan, face charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice. The two, who were in the U.S. attending college and shared an apartment, have been detained since they were charged in a criminal complaint in May.

Both are scheduled for arraignment Tuesday.

Tazhayakov's attorney, Arkady Bukh, said his client did nothing wrong and he's tried for months to convince authorities to drop the case.

"For me, this sounds like a witch hunt," he said. "And this is the same view (my) client has." Kadyrbayev's attorney, Robert Stahl, said his client never knowingly took evidence from Tsarnaev's dorm room.

Tsarnaev, 20, is accused in the April 15 blasts at the Boston Marathon that killed three people and injured more than 260. He was captured April 19 in the Boston suburb of Watertown, after he was found hiding in a dry-docked boat, hours after a shootout with police. He's pleaded not guilty.

The indictment says that night Kadyrbayev put the backpack with the fireworks and jelly in a garbage bag, and tossed the bag in a trash bin outside the apartment. The next morning, they allegedly watched as a garbage truck emptied the bin.

Moscow. Man confesses to Bolshoi Theater attack: Interfax news

The Interfax news agency says the man accused of an acid attack on the artistic director of the Bolshoi Theater has confessed his guilt and requested that the two other defendants be exonerated.

Yuri Zarutsky is accused of accepting money from dancer Pavel Dmitrichenko and carrying out the attack on Sergei Filin. A third man, Andrei Lipatov, is accused of driving Zarutsky to and from the scene of the crime.

Interfax said Zarutsky confessed his guilt in court on Thursday, saying that he initiated the attack.

If tried as "a group acting in collusion," the men face up to 12 years in prison, as opposed to eight if they are tried individually.

"They are trying to break down the 'group' and the 'collusion,'" Filin's lawyer Tatiana Stukalova told Interfax. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Zanzibar, Tanzania. Two British women attacked by acid throwers: Police

Assailants on the East African island of Zanzibar threw acid on two British women volunteers teaching at a primary school on the Tanzanian island, police said Thursday.

The attackers, riding on a small motorcycle, threw the acid on the women's faces and arms as they were walking, said Mkadam Khamis, a police commander on the island. The attack took place Wednesday night in a tourist area of the city.

The women were transferred to Tanzania's commercial capital, Dar es Salaam, for medical treatment.

The alleged attack against the women is at least the third acid attack in Zanzibar since last year.

"We are looking (for) the attackers, and we are expanding our police networks in and outside the country to make sure we apprehend them," said Khamis.

Terrifying father-son glacier trip ends with a hug

Harrowing adventure. Carefully practising safety precautions helps dad rescue son from tragic fate

JEREMY NOLAÏS
Metro in Calgary

Raymond Cossette had taken three steps across a snow bridge when it "disappeared" beneath his feet.

The 32-year-old Alberta man was six kilometres up a glacier on Mount Robson, an hour northwest of Jasper, Alta., with his father Robert. The elder Cossette had flown in from Gatineau, Que., for an annual father-son climbing trip.

But now Ray was free-falling down a crevasse, dropping at least 18 metres before the rope tethered to Rob topside began to tighten. When he hit a pack of deep snow roughly 25 metres below, Ray sank up to his neck.

"I was actually relatively calm, I was just waiting for the rope to catch," said Ray. "If (Rob) had given me two or three feet more slack, I would have been buried down there essentially."

Up above, the force of Ray's fall had swept Rob right off his feet. He'd already crossed the snow bridge with no problems, but now was being dragged back toward the hole.

Rob had carefully gone over safety precautions with his son the night before, practising knots until he got them right. He managed to anchor himself and went to work securing knots to stabilize the rope, but he couldn't hear Raymond initially and feared the worst.

"Nobody wants to lose their son ... nobody has a death wish," he said.

But Ray had managed to

Quoted

"Nobody wants to lose their son ... nobody has a death wish."

Robert Cossette

pull his shovel out and went to work digging himself out. Once free, he turned to the ice-climbing equipment in his pack but the frozen walls were too thick to dig into. Instead, Ray used a technique he'd practised by tying a rope to beams in his garage and shimmying up it.

When Ray reached the top, two hours after his fall, his father wrapped him up in a big hug.

The Robson glacier trip was over, but the father-son pair couldn't stay off the mountains for long, teaming up for an "easy summit" on Thursday. On future glacier climbs, they plan to add a third person to the rope.

Rob Cossette, left, and son Ray make a habit of trekking up some of Alberta and B.C.'s most daunting mountains. Ray is crediting his quick-learning father with saving his life after he plunged 25 metres into a crevasse Sunday.

A T. rex steak? A woolly mammoth taco? How about your grouchy old boss served up (quite literally) on a silver platter?

In theory, we could someday be eating it all without hurting anyone or anything — taken straight from stem cells lovingly nurtured in a petri dish and dished up on your dinner table.

Maastricht University in the Netherlands is at the root of what could become a modern food marvel. A team there has unveiled a hamburger (valued at $340,000) that was grown in a lab instead of cut from a cow.

And, experts say, that's only the start of where this could all wind up.

Simply put, if this whole thing shakes out, stem cells from pretty much anything we can get our hands on could be cultivated, grilled and enjoyed — depending on how strong your stomach is, of course.

Big dig unearths layers of London's history

Crossrail line. Britain's biggest construction project is also largest archeological dig in London for decades

Jewelry, pieces of ships, medieval ice skates, centuries-old skulls — work on a new railway line under the British capital is bringing centuries of buried history to light.

In London's busy business core, archeologists have struck pay dirt, uncovering everything from a chunk of Roman road to dozens of 2,000-year-old horseshoes, some golden 16th-century bling — and the bones of long-dead Londoners.

The 2,000-year history of London goes deep — 5 to 6

Mammoth find

More than 100 archeologists at 40 excavation sites have found everything from mammoth bones dating back 68,000 years to a Tudor manor house, medieval ice skates, an 800-year-old ship and an 18th-century shipyard.

metres deep, the distance between today's street level and sidewalks in Roman times. The Crossrail line is providing archeologists with a chance to dig down through those centuries and beyond.

The railway will run across London with a central 21-kilometre section underground. That has meant tunnelling beneath some of the city's oldest, most densely populated sections. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

California still dreaming? Climate change impacting forests, animals: Report

Coastal waters off California are getting more acidic. Conifer forests on the lower slopes of the Sierra Nevada mountains have moved to higher elevations over the past half-century.

Climate change is affecting natural resources in California, a report released Thursday by an arm of the California Environmental Protection Agency found. The findings are an update to a 2009 report that documented how a warming California is impacting the environment, wildlife and people.

Among the known impacts: Butterflies in the Central Valley region are emerging from hiding earlier in the spring; glaciers in the Sierra Nevada have shrunk; and spring runoff from snowmelt has declined, affecting Central Valley farmers and hydroelectric plants.

Expect more heat waves, wildfires and higher sea levels as the state warms, the report said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

After a deadly train derailment in Quebec last month, Sun News Network's Ezra Levant pondered if eco-terrorism was to blame. "Blocking trains is the new favourite tactic of Canada's environmentalists, anarchists and self-styled Indian warriors," Levant said. CRTC turns down Sun News' basic-cable bid

Television. However, telecom regulator says it plans to review rules for news channels

Sun News Network says it will stay on the air while the CRTC reviews the way news channels are regulated in Canada.

The Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission on Thursday rejected the network's bid to be carried on basic cable, casting fresh doubts on the future of the controversial upstart broadcaster.

But the CRTC also says it will review the regulations for news channels in Canada.

"The diversity of voices is an essential component of our society, particularly as they relate to news and information in the Canadian broadcasting system," CRTC chairman Jean-Pierre Blais said in a statement.

"Television news channels provide an important public service by ensuring that Canadians are exposed to different opinions and perspectives on matters that concern all citizens. We are concerned that, under the existing rules, Canadian news services are not being given a pride of place in our broadcasting system."

Road safety. Herzog teams up with AT&T for short film on texting and driving

In his documentaries, Werner Herzog has examined grizzly bears, plane crash survivors, cave paintings and death row inmates. For his latest project, the filmmaker is exploring the dangers of texting while driving in From One Second to the Next, a 35-minute short film that emotionally recounts how lives have been forever changed by the issue.

"I knew I could do it because it has to do with catastrophic events invading a family," said

Herzog, 70. "In one second, entire lives are either wiped out or changed forever. That kind of emotional resonance is something that I knew I could cover."

The documentary, which tells the stories of both victims and perpetrators, is available to watch at ItCanWait.com and will be distributed by AT&T to more than 40,000 high schools, as well as hundreds of safety organizations and government agencies.

Railway granted creditor protection

The railroad involved in the fatal Lac-Mégantic train derailment was granted creditor protection Thursday in a Canadian court, a decision expected to increase the value of the company's assets and speed up the payment process. But it remained unclear how much of its rapidly growing liabilities the railway will ultimately be able to pay off. THE CANADIAN PRESS

AND IN OTHER SHARK NEWS...

1 When the dealin's done. Amazon founder Jeff Bezos bought the Washington Post from the Grahams to whom it belonged for 80 years. The sale came as a surprise to many, so when Post Co. CEO Donald E. Graham was asked why he would sell his family business so suddenly, he said, "Look, I'm old. It's a newspaper, and the guy had $250 million." Touché, Donny.

2 Global warming. A new study revealed worrisome statistics from 2012. Rising sea levels and melting ice reached alarming levels. Temperatures were only slightly affected but have been increasing at a rate of about 1.5 C per decade over the last 50 years. In short, I may not have to worry in my lifetime, but we should all probably stop having kids.

3 Shark week. Headlines read "Dead shark found on NYC subway." Firstly, do we need the word 'dead' here? Or is it not enough that in a densely populated city, someone could enter a station with a three-foot-long stinking sea creature, wait for the train, drag it in before the doors close, and place it under a row of seats without anyone noticing?

4 'Spelling' be. Twelve-year-old Thomas Hurley III misspelled the final Jeopardy! answer 'Emancipation Proclamation,' which judges deemed unacceptable. The commotion caused by this completely overshadowed the fact that the real winner not only had the answer spelled correctly, but that his record-breaking score of $66,000 meant that Thomas had zero chance of winning anyway. But maybe I'm just 'nupticking.'

5 Grand slam. It was a big week for 38-year-old Alex Rodriguez who returned to baseball this week after his second hip surgery in four years. A-Rod also received a suspension for drug use, which he is appealing on the basis that, at his age and stage of his career, pretty much anything would qualify as "performance-enhancing."

6 Birthday suit. When asked if she was uncomfortable with the nudity and risqué sexuality in playing the role of Linda Lovelace, Amanda Seyfried shrugged and said, "It's a costume really.

Just a naked body. We all look the same." Umm, no, but that's why I love Amanda Seyfried.

7 The Bachelorette. If I understand this correctly, Desiree told the final bachelor, "I publicly declared my love for another contestant who told me he didn't feel the same (just last week), and it made me realize I was in love with you all along." Ah, the romantic story we all long to tell our kids, and it's all on video. Cheers!

8 This week in music. In 1975 The Bee Gees hit No. 1 in America with 'Jive Talkin'', which was the group's second U.S. chart-topper on the road to many more. They were also the first known white people to ever use that phrase.

9 Piano in the dark. The Canadian music community suffered a loss this week when James Gray died of a sudden heart attack. James was just 52, and played keyboards for the Rheostatics, Vital Sines, and Blue Rodeo. Among the countless artists who had the pleasure to work with Gray, he will be fondly remembered. His death leaves a gaping hole in the music community. As for me, I thank him for the songs he leaves behind.

Underground station for sale

Brompton Road Underground station, now disused, in central London, is up for sale for about $31 million.

The station is near to the historic Brompton Oratory church and the ritzy Harrods department store. It opened in 1906 but turned out to be too close to other stations to attract many passengers, and was closed in 1934.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Once also used by military in WWII

Brompton Road station is being sold by the Ministry of Defence, which bought the building in the 1936, when it became an army anti-aircraft headquarters, protecting London from German bombers during the Blitz.

The ministry, which is selling several properties and laying off thousands of soldiers in a cost-cutting drive, says the building has been declared

"surplus to requirements" and will be put up for sale next month. The site includes a station building covered in the distinctive oxblood-coloured tiles of London Underground's Piccadilly Line. The ministry said the interior includes "a drill hall, garages, offices and mess," as well as elevator shafts and underground passages — though not the subway tunnels, which remain in use and belong to London's transit operator.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

One of many

- Brompton Road is one of several abandoned subway stations in London. Many are derelict, although Aldwych station has been preserved as a location for filming period dramas, and the former Hyde Park Corner station building was a restaurant and jazz club until it closed in 2010.

Set in 2154, humanity has split into two sections, the one per cent, who live on an Eden called Elysium that hovers high above Earth, and the 99 per cent who toil on what's left of our planet. The one per cent have it all plus medical care that can cure any ailment. On earth Max (Matt Damon) is an ex-thief who has always dreamed of living in Elysium and is now working a straight job to save enough to buy a ticket. When he's exposed to a lethal dose of radiation he makes a deal with a crime boss (Wagner Moura) who hires him to do a job for a one-way ticket to Elysium. Metro's Liz Brown sits in for Mark Breslin.

CROUSE AND
MARK BRESLIN

Elysium. District 9 director's return to the big screen isn't as sci-fi fresh as his debut

Richard: Liz, director Neill Blomkamp's big screen debut, District 9, was a fresh slice of sci-fi with a real beating heart. He brings that same kind of humanity to Elysium, but it doesn't feel quite as fresh this time around. It's exciting, has some great action and ideas and everybody's boyfriend Matt Damon, but for all that, it feels much more standard than I hoped it would be. What did you think?

Liz: Richard, Elysium isn't as fresh because it's District 9

Matt Damon is convincing as a downtrodden guy with a dream in Elysium. CONTRIBUTED

Back to the future?

with prettier faces. There's an unfair class system, a guy who undergoes a grotesque transformation and the same dusty shanty towns. I even thought Blomkamp recycled footage from District 9 — the Los Angeles of 2154 looks oddly like the Prawn camp outside Johannesburg. But a shredded Matt Damon is a nice addition to the somewhat tired story.

RC: I should make it clear that I liked most of this movie. I think the setup is interesting, even if it is reminiscent of everything from Oblivion and even WALL-E, and for the first hour it does what great sci-fi should do, comment on the human condition. But then it becomes an ordinary bash-'em and beat-'em action movie with sentimental and mawkish overtones. It's not bad, and, in fact, at times is pretty great, just not as great as I expected.

LB: While the story was meh, for me, the bash-'em-up scenes were great. Watching Matt Damon and a deranged Sharlto Copley tangle in some mortal combat was a lot of fun. I thought Copley—who was the wimpy Wikus in District 9—really stole the show in his role as a rogue secret service agent.

RC: Copley is entertaining, chewing through the scenery like he hasn't eaten in a week. Damon also impresses. He's believable as both the sensitive guy with a dream and the lethal, half-cyborg warrior capable of opening a can of futuristic whoop ass on everyone in his way. Iodie Foster is nicely cast as the ice cold Donald-Rumsfeld-style villain, but I found her perfect diction really distracting. Every word she says seemed to have its own finely honed shape to the point where I almost had a hard time understanding what she was saying.

LB: Foster wasn't the only one with distracting diction. I found the fast-talk in this film impossible to understand. I'm still not sure of the finer points of the Earthling plan to invade Elysium and maybe Matt Damon missed them too, judging from the way things go terribly wrong. He really got a raw deal didn't he? Only Damon could take on a lethal radiation dose, sketchy Tijuana-style surgery and a few beatings and still save the day.

Planes

Director. Clay Hall

Stars. Dane Cook, Stacy Keach, Brad Garrett

After narrowly qualifying for the Wings Around the World Rally, Dusty (voice of Dane Cook), a single-propeller crop duster with a fear of heights, recruits the help of retired Navy Corsair Skipper (voice of Stacy Keach) to teach him how to win. Unfortunately the race's reigning champ Ripslinger (Roger Craig Smith) feels threatened by Dusty and conspires to dash his high hopes. Planes plays like an airborne Cars, but has a definite direct-to-DVD feel about it. There are good messages about the benefits of honesty and hard work, but the dull story never takes flight.

I'm So Excited

Director. Pedro Almodovar

Stars. Javier Camara, Cecilia Roth

Possessing a terribly incongruous mix of tones, I'm So Excited feels like a rare misstep for feted Spanish filmmaker Pedro Almodovar. A malfunction puts a passenger plane in jeopardy as it prepares for an emergency landing. Inside a trio of campy male flight attendants do their best to put all at ease, often through drink and drugs. At first the bawdy one-liners are a refreshing change from Hollywood's recent parade of awkward, mean-spirited comedy. But the jokes and the sexual innuendo soon grow thin.

Metro in Vancouver

It took Josh Blacker a few years of working as a litigator to realize that law was not nearly as dramatic a career path as he had hoped it would be.

The Vancouver actor, now 40, had pictured himself making passionate, nuanced arguments in front of a judge, but in practise his days in court were rare, and when he did go he found the script he had to follow was boring.

"I think what happened was I watched an episode of L.A. law, and thought, 'That would be fun,' and then realized later on that, in fact, I didn't want to be a lawyer," he told Metro in a recent phone interview from L.A.

"I wanted to be a person pretending to be a lawyer."

In 2004 he packed up and moved from Calgary to Vancouver to pursue his other lifelong dream, acting, which paid off big time when he was cast in Elysium: Oscar-nominated writer/director Neill Blomkamp's blockbuster sci-fi followup to District 9.

Set in the year 2154, two classes of people exist: the very wealthy who live on a pristine man-made space station called Elysium, and the rest, who live on an overpopulated, ruined Earth.

Starring opposite Jodie Foster, Matt Damon, Sharlto Copley, Diego Luna, Brandon Auret, and Alice Braga, Blacker plays Crowe, a South African mercenary sent to protect Elysium.

Blacker happens to have been born and raised in South Africa, so when he found out Blomkamp was casting a South African for the film, he says he felt he was destined to play the part. It is also the type of role in which he was comfortable and experienced, having appeared on a number of Vancouver-shot sci-fi TV shows such as Supernatural and Stargate: Atlantis.

"Most of the time I play some pretty bad dudes," he said. "I've played marines and convicts and mercenaries and occasionally some guy that maybe you're not sure about that lives next door."

Blacker said working with Damon and Foster was a "dream come true" and called his feature film debut the most amazing experience of his career to date.

"He's exactly as you would expect him to be," he said of Damon. "He's grounded and warm as you would expect him to be, and he has a really great sense of humour. He's just a terrific guy and you can understand why he's one of the most bankable stars out there."

Elysium opens in IMAX and theatres nationwide on Aug. 9.

It amounts to the most epic bathroom break in TV history

Interview. Bryan Cranston on Walter White's future in Breaking Bad's final season and the nature of his character

MEREDITH ENGEL

Metro World News

If you're not caught up on Breaking Bad, you might want to stop reading here. But if you are caught up, you know that last season's cliffhanging finale ended with DEA agent Hank Schrader picking up some very special reading material while on the toilet — evidence to incriminate his brother-in-law, Walter White, for orchestrating the drug ring Schrader has had his eyes on since the first season.

While you might have been waiting with baited breath to find out what happens when Hank comes out of that bathroom, Bryan Cranston tells Metro he wasn't.

"I didn't ask for the whole year," says Cranston, who has played the series' lead Walter White since 2008.

He says he only got the script about two weeks before the episode began shooting. "I don't need to have a lot of information in my head."

Fans won't have to wait much longer to discover what happens next, as the series returns for its final eight episodes beginning Sunday. Cranston himself was mum about the series finale when we spoke to him last month. But he did share plenty of insight into a series he calls a "cautionary tale," about a man whose hunger for power just couldn't be satiated.

How many people know the ending right now?

Maybe about 20. It's gonna go up to about 200. ... There are several things that happen, as you might guess, in the last eight — many twists and turns that you will gasp at.

Breaking Bad returns for its eight final episodes starting Sunday. The long-awaited showdown places Hank Schrader in direct conflict with the villainous hero, Walter White. FRANK OCKENFELS/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Why do you think people from all walks of life really connect to this show?

Well, I think because it's honest. We're exploring sociopolitical relationships.

Some people were gleaming that, "Oh, this is a condemnation of the medical care system in the United States, because here's a man who is a teacher, and a well educated man, and he cannot provide for his family." ... We are telling this story in that manner that is resonating with people because it's not about drug manufacturing or drug usage; this story is about decisions that people make and the slippery slope that (can) happen.

Are you happy with Walt's ending?

I'm very pleased. You know, there was apprehension of reading the last episode because once you read the last episode, there's no more episodes to read — it's just like, whoa, I don't want it to end. But I can honestly say that fans of our show will be very pleased, very satisfied with the outcome. It's very Breaking Bad — unapologetic and very appropriate. We cover it all. I can tell you this: There's not going to be a sense of, "Wait a minute, what?" That's not going to be the case with Breaking Bad.

Breaking up with Breaking Bad is hard to do

Vince Gilligan, the Breaking Bad creator, is having trouble remembering to talk about things in the past tense.

"I say this in present tense but it's all past tense now, which makes me sad anew," he says with a laugh while talking about crafting the finale to his groundbreaking, award-winning series,

Breaking Bad.

As Gilligan is adjusting to a life not spent chronicling the transformation of Walter White (Bryan Cranston) from a mild-mannered, cancer-ridden high school chemistry teacher to a ruthless meth kingpin, here's a glimpse of what's been on his mind.

He knew when to say when:

I had some very, very polite discussions. I never had any arguments, but I had Bryan Cranston say, "Are you sure you want to end it?" I had Sony and AMC say, "Are you sure you want to end it?" And it all came from a place of enthusiasm for the show and a desire for it to continue, and

I have those same feelings of enthusiasm and desire. I wanted the show to go on forever for reasons of creative satisfaction and personal satisfaction. But it wasn't that hard of a decision to end it. I wanted it to end on a high note.

He doesn't know what you're saying about him:

I have this phobia about Googling myself. I've never done it, and I don't intend to start. I think my fear is I'm too interested, and if I started to look up fan reactions on the Internet, it would be a sort of rabbit hole that I would disappear down.

A dealer with a conscience is still a dealer

Aaron Paul plays Jesse Pinkman on Breaking Bad. GETTY IMAGES

Aaron Paul has won two Emmys for his acting chops, so it's no surprise he was able to fool us into believing that the cast of Breaking Bad had filmed 12 different endings for the critically acclaimed series and that he was unsure which would make it to air.

But jokes aside, Paul says he does know how his character, the drug-dealer-with-a-conscience Jesse Pinkman, ends his run in these final eight episodes, and that he's happy with the trajectory.

"As a whole I'm very pleased," he tells Metro, saying that it's hard to discuss his character's final moments without giving anything away.

Also a challenge for the actor: Admitting that the series has come to an end.

"I think (I've) kinda moved past the mourning, or maybe not — maybe I'm just in denial," he says with a laugh.

While he won't reveal too much about the show's final season, he does tell fans to expect the same level — if not more — of darkness they've come to expect from the show's previous episodes.

And now, with the end approaching, everything's at a heightened pace.

"I think the very first episode of the final eight, that's a violent punch to the throat," Paul says.

"You would like to think that he is the moral compass," Paul says of his character.

"But if you really think about it, he was a drug dealer and he's a murderer. ... You hope that Jesse kinda comes out of this, but you know, who knows?"

It's her wedding and she'll have it when she wants to Jennifer Aniston is fed up with the tabloids reporting that she and fiancé Justin Theroux have called off their wedding.

"Well, there was no wedding planned," an exasperated Aniston says while visiting The Talk, a daytime chat show.

"Do you realize that the majority of all of those tag rags are loaded with absolute false information? They like to create the stories because it's not interesting, the story of, 'we're really happy and in love and feel like we're married and eventually we're going to get married when we find the time.' I don't think there's a rush."

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Beyoncé, and more celebs who chopped their hair off

The unthinkable has happened. Beyoncé, who pretty much runs the world right now, with her inexplicably voluminous waves flowing in her hip-shaking wake, has gone for the chop. She posted photos to her Instagram today of the bleached-blond do, immediately dividing her five million plus followers. In recognition of this monumental moment, we reflect on other celebrities who have divided the world with their haircut.

Anne Hathaway

The Les Mis star has never had the best luck with public opinion in the first place, but when she cut off her hair for the role of Fantine, things got messy. Alongside the usual haters you actually had Hathaway joining in herself, saying she looked like her "gay brother" and claiming to be "inconsolable."

Emma Watson

Hermione without her signature bushy long hair is almost as shocking as Beyoncé without her iconic locks.

Rihanna

When Rihanna first went for the crop it signalled the end of the Pon de Replay era and the beginning of the provocative singer as we now know her.

Miley Cyrus

What better way to wave her Disney days goodbye than with a bleached pixie cut? The new, punked-up Miley was probably a bit of a surprise to her pre-teen fan base. She's still working on making her image click.

Carey Mulligan

Until the whole Beyoncé situation plays out, we can safely say the British actress is the greatest success story when it comes to the crop. After a peroxide dye left her hair stunted, she turned the problem into a solution by sporting a chic boyish style that has now become synonymous with the Gatsby star.

Britney Spears

OK, so it wasn't exactly a tasteful haircut, nor was the decision made with much rational thought. But if there has ever been a game-changing hair moment (yes, such a thing exists), it has to belong to Britney. The Leave Britney Alone video garnered more than 46 million hits and its creator now has a Wikipedia entry. At least someone won. METRO

With craft beer hotter than you know where, larger producers are caught in a bit of a conundrum. How, after decades of massaging the taste profile of their brands so they appeal to the masses, do they compete with up-starts that are all about in-your-face flavours?

Many have returned to their kettles to take advantage of beer's primary flavouring agent — the often unheralded hop.

Hops are the lady part of the humulus lupulus plant. And while the water or grain source of your fave brew influences its personality, individual hop strains provide the bitter goodness and expressive character.

Alexander Keith's, the one-time Nova Scotia exclusive that's now carried across the country, is proving my point by creating a unique series of ales named for the specific hop used.

Its Cascade Hop Ale (473 ml, $2.55 to $3.49) is a mel-low session beer with citrusy overtones and a nice, bitter bite. The Hallertauer Hop Ale (473 ml, $2.55 to $3.49) is lighter with more of a backseat bitterness that lets the malt shine through.

Try both with classic barbecue fare or spicy, hard to match dishes like Indian curries. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

A flurry of sweet treats

Ice cream. Need a fresh way to chill out this summer? How about DIY flurries?

A flurry is simple — and it isn't something you can only get at the ice cream shop. You start off with ice cream, usually a basic flavour, then you stir or mix or blend all kinds of things into it. It's not a float; no liquid is added. It's like an ice cream sundae, but with the toppings blended instead of piled on top.

Start with a pint of ice cream. Remove the lid and microwave it for about 10 seconds. Test it with a spoon. The ice cream should still be frozen, but should give when pressed with the back of the spoon. If it's not ready, continue microwaving in 5-second bursts, testing in between.

Now you're ready to mix. You can keep it simple and just use a spoon to mix the ice cream and toppings in a bowl, but where's the fun in that? Ice cream shops often use a stick blender, an item you may not have. So instead, toss everything into the food processor and pulse a few times.

As for what to use to flavour your flurries? Anything goes.

Canada Summer Games. Nova Scotia bumps medal tally to 12 in national event

andrew.rankin@metronews.ca

They went into the Canada Summer Games among the elite young sailors in the country, and they didn't disappoint on Thursday afternoon in Sherbrooke Que.

First it was Corrine Peters from the Royal Nova Scotia Yacht Squadron, who captured silver in the female laser radial class. Shortly after that, her fellow RNSYS members Greg Simms and Devan Dube struck bronze in the 29er event.

Peters, who just weeks before the Games competed at the Youth Sailing World Championship in Cyprus, was ecstatic about her first Summer Games medal.

"After the youth worlds I was just trying to get my feet back on the ground and to just keep up my momentum," she said. "I came here to win a medal and I'm so happy to be going home with one."

Used to ocean training, the 18-year-old had to adjust to trickier, unpredictable lake conditions.

She went into her last of 12 races over six days on Thursday having won five of them, which guaranteed her an overall top three finish. "I went into today hoping to win silver, and I did."

After capturing the 29er Canadian championships held in Kingston last month, Simms and Dube came short of their goal of a gold or silver medal.

After a disastrous run on their second of six days of sailing, which set them back 10 points from the pack, they clawed back to an eventual third-place finish.

"We're still third in the country," said Dube.

Claire McNally of Bridgewater earned her second medal of the games with a bronze performance in the 200 metre individual medley; Para division. New Glasgow's Tim Ferris collected his fifth medal of the Games, earning a bronze in the 50M freestyle; Special Olympics division. Sean Berrigan of Dartmouth struck bronze in the 50M backstroke.

NHL

Plenty of potential owners interested in Devils: Source

A person familiar with the negotiations says several groups are vying to buy the financially strapped New Jersey Devils, and a deal should be completed by the start of the NHL season.

The source spoke to The Associated Press Thursday and requested anonymity because the negotiations between Devils owner Jeff Vanderbeek and the groups are still active.

Philadelphia 76ers owner Josh Harris heads one group trying to buy the three-time Stanley Cup champions and Calgary billionaire Bill Gallacher is another, although the source said multiple groups are bidding on the deal that includes the operating rights to the Prudential Center. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sochi Olympics

Russia says they will respect rights

Urging critics of Russia's new anti-gay law to "calm down," the country's sports minister said Thursday that the rights of all athletes competing at next year's Winter Olympics in Sochi will be respected.

Sports Minister Vitaly Mutko did insist that athletes would "have to respect the laws of the country" during the Feb. 7-23 games in the Black Sea resort in southern Russia.

The law, signed by President Vladimir Putin in June, bans "propaganda of nontraditional sexual relations" and imposes fines on those holding gay pride rallies. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wayne Gretzky wipes away tears during a press conference to announce his being traded from the Edmonton Oilers to the Los Angeles Kings at a press conference in Edmonton on August 9, 1988. RAY GIGUERE/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bettman: Great One gave NHL 'credibility' in U.S.

Hockey in the U.S.
NHL commissioner says Gretzky brought credibility to hockey south of the border

Hockey fans of a certain age tend to remember where they were on Aug. 9, 1988, when the Oilers traded Wayne Gretzky to the Los Angeles Kings.

NHL commissioner Gary Bettman was working for the NBA 25 years ago and doesn't recall exactly where he was. His most vivid memory came a couple of weeks later when he saw the Aug. 22 Sports Illustrated cover that featured Gretzky and Lakers star Magic Johnson.

"Remember thinking at the time that that demonstrated a huge step forward for hockey and its credibility," Bettman told The Canadian Press on Thursday. "It was obviously something that, in the annals of sports, was one of those seminal events that gets a tremendous amount of attention because of its import and impact."

Sports Illustrated's cover read, "Great move, Gretzky." At the expense of the Oilers and their fans, it also turned out to be a great move for hockey in the United States, which benefited from expansion and an infusion of players at the youth level.

"People paid attention to hockey in places where they might not have focused on it as much, and it was clear there was a great deal of interest in the game," Bettman said.

When Gretzky arrived in Los Angeles, The Forum wasn't a loud or intimidating place to play. Sellouts and celebrity appearances became the norm, thanks to the NHL's biggest star.

Not long after, Gretzky's impact was felt beyond Los Angeles. The league added a second California team in 1991 with the San Jose Sharks and a third in 1993 with the Anaheim Mighty Ducks.

Bettman became commissioner before the Mighty Ducks and Florida Panthers debuted and the Minnesota North Stars moved to Dallas and in the midst of the Tampa Bay Lightning's first season. The league's expansion across the Sunbelt continued under Bettman's watch, due in no small part to the Gretzky trade.

"It was the reaction of people to the game," Bettman said of the cause and effect. "Wayne's presence in L.A. and the success the Kings had demonstrated that hockey had credibility in so-called newer or non-traditional markets."

Pirates riding strange winning tide

For 20 years, the Pittsburgh Pirates couldn't win. Now, it seems they cannot lose.

Russell Martin's pinch-hit single with two outs in the 10th inning lifted the Pirates over the Miami Marlins 5-4 Thursday for their fifth straight win.

Martin delivered his fourth game-ending hit at PNC Park this year for the NL Central leaders.

The Pirates swept the three-game series and improved to 70-44, the best record in the majors. Miami lost a 4-0 lead and fell for the fifth time in a row.

"We're like the Miami Heat," Pittsburgh star centre fielder Andrew McCutchen said. "We play better in the second half of games."

Pittsburgh has had 20 consecutive losing seasons, a major North American professional sports record.

"It's been so much fun," Pirates second baseman Neil Walker said. "It seems like it's somebody different every day that's been the hero."

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

There may be a 90 per cent chance that what you are about to embark on will end in failure, but don't let that stop you. Maybe the percentages are wrong. Maybe you can will yourself to success.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Do something that upsets those who don't like it when changes have to be made. Just because others have settled into a safe rhythm does not mean you have to as well.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

If there is something you want, just take it. Be aware, however, that when you take from others it gives them the right to take from you in return.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

You may be desperate to change your life for the better but it won't happen overnight. Anything that is worth having is worth working for, so roll up your sleeves and get in there.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

Self-doubt may be alien to you but there will be times over the next couple of days when you begin to wonder if you are doing something the wrong way. Maybe you are. Even a Leo gets it wrong sometimes.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

Do something today that reminds those around you how dangerous it can be to take you for granted. You don't have to make it shocking or outrageous but, on the other hand, there's no reason why you should not!

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Pick a side and join in some kind of battle today. Does that thought fill you with fear? It shouldn't. The only people who have cause to be alarmed are those who find themselves on the opposite side to you.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Saturn in your sign is pushing you to your limits but that's OK because you enjoy being tested. Decide on a course of action over the next 24 hours and stick to it.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

The best way to deal with criticism is to ignore it. Someone will say something today that is neither true nor fair but so what? Your ego is tough enough to take it.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

You will be faced with a situation that makes you angry today but don't let it get out of hand. Before you lose your temper try asking yourself who is most likely to get hurt by it: your rival or you?

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

There are times when it's OK to be selfish and this is one of them. The more other people try to move you in a certain direction, the more you must insist on going some other way, just to annoy them.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

You are under divine protection and don't need to worry about the day's events or what the future may bring. Do what feels right. One way or another it will work out. SALLY BROMPTON
